Acupuncture is a nationally registered health profession and an ATMS accredited modality.

ATMS Course Accreditation in Acupuncture is based on the course (program) being approved by the Australian Health Practitioner Regulation Agency (AHPRA) for general registration in the Profession of Chinese Medicine Practitioner in the Division of Acupuncture. On this basis, ATMS accreditation of the course is reliant on the continued approved status for general registration with AHPRA.

ATMS Member Accreditation in Acupuncture is based on the practitioner holding current general registration with the Australian Health Practitioner Regulation Agency (AHPRA) for general registration in the Profession of Chinese Medicine Practitioner in the Division of Acupuncture. On this basis, continued ATMS Acupuncture accreditation of the member is reliant on current and continued general practicing registration status with AHPRA.
